However, Marvel also announced some major news as well, which is why we had to dig deeper into the press release. Today, we're talking about a very exciting event that is yet to start at the 2012 Comic-Con International: San Diego.. "The Vision" arrives at Comic-Con International in the form of a full-fledged television miniseries, The Vision: A True Story, which is premiering on TV in January 2012. The story is centered around the first day of The Vision's debut — which happens to be February 16, 2012. The TV series will tell the story of Nick Fury, a man trying to rebuild his own family following the death of his sister. While working on some paperwork, Fury, working with an operative called the "Vision," is approached by Baron Zemo (Nick Fury's nephew), who offers to make an offer to anyone who knows where Baron Zemo is. The mysterious benefactor wants to prove Fury's innocence and save people from him and his evil ways. The main villainous villain is a guy called Baron Strucker, who wants to get the Vision into a prison cell and use him as a pawn in a scheme that'll see him seize control of the United States. The "vision" is the hero and the audience is tasked with finding him and stopping the Vision. But the only thing the audience is really sure of is Baron Strucker, and not being able to convince Zemo would really cause chaos, so they do what any reasonable person would do in their situation..
